

Luke Igweobi, DNP, MS, APRN, PMHNP-BC

Boston Massachusetts 02301, USA; lukeigweobi@gmail.com

*International Development Consultant | Population Health Clinical
Practitioner | Academic Educator | Human Development Enthusiast | Social Entrepreneur*

Brief Professional Bio -Dr. Luke Chike Igweobi

International Development Practice Consultant; Executive Director Outlets for Hope, Inc.; Administrator/Program Director -Tailored Health LLC; Founder and Chancellor- Eliezer Igweobi Center for Innovation & Sustainability; Program Director Drug Abuse & Sex Trafficking (DAST) Foundation Inc.; Clinical Doctor of Population Health Nursing Practice; Adjunct Professor of Quality Improvement; LeadBoston 2010 Fellow (Boston Center for Community & Justice); Member: Amnesty International USA -Group 133 Cambridge/Somerville; Author of Bestseller-ranked Novels, My Son Tiffany; Suya Economics; Pour A Drink for the Monkey; Monday in Marrakech; and Ten Years in Tripoli. Co-author of Textbook: Integrative Psychiatry Practice -A practical Guide for Clinicians & Advanced Practice Registered Nurses

Dr. Luke Chike Igweobi is an international development practitioner, clinical practice leader, and celebrated author, whose work bridges cultures and generations, inspiring cultural preservation and global connectivity. With a deep passion for identity, resilience, and belonging, his work explores the landscapes of diaspora, tradition, and personal transformation. He is an advocate for human capital development and envision sustainable ecosystems where individuals and communities can thrive and achieve fullest potentials. With decades of experience in healthcare leadership, international development practice, and environmental policy, his mission is to bridge gaps in development key performance indicators, promote community resilience, and inspire future generations through education, organizing and inspiring storytelling. Dr. Igweobi has been involved in international development work in the Philippines, Haiti, Colombia, Cape Verde, United States, Ghana, and Nigeria.

He is an author whose storytelling explores themes of identity, tradition, and the power of community—an extension of his commitment to empowering voices from diverse backgrounds. His narratives speak to the stories of those whose voice would otherwise not be heard.

A Nigerian-American based in the Greater Boston Massachusetts area, Dr. Igweobi brings a unique voice shaped by his cross-continental journey, blending literary depth with lived experience. He holds a population health clinical Doctor of Nursing Practice from the College of Health, Education & Social Transformation at the New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, New Mexico, USA. Dr. Igweobi obtained a Master of Science degree in Management from New England College, Henniker New Hampshire USA in 2009; and has two Bachelors of Science degrees from the University of Lagos, and Curry College, Milton Massachusetts, respectively. He holds a professional Master's Certificate in Environmental Policy and International Development from Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts, USA.

Beyond his clinical and academic leadership, he is the founder and Chancellor of the Eliezer Igweobi Center for Innovation & Sustainability, championing sustainability practices and community resilience in Eastern Nigerian. He is also the Executive Director of Outlets for Hope, Inc.—a human development and population health organization committed to community healing and empowerment. Dr. Luke Chike Igweobi is the co-founder and Program Director at the Drug Abuse & Sex Trafficking (DAST) Foundation Inc. He is an adjunct Professor, and through his work, continues to give voice to the untold stories of families, faith, fate and futures reimagined. He resides with his young family in the south shore of Massachusetts, USA.